

Collecting suspicious information. 	Taking photos or filming like official evidence. 	Judging a drink, snack, or party object too seriously. 	Recruiting you into a cause, movement, or campaign.
Giving mystical, spiritual, or cosmic advice. 	Acting like the party involves romance or marriage. 	Protecting, managing, or supervising another guest. 	Claiming status, fame, wealth, talent, or expertise.
Giving therapy, life advice, or a fake breakthrough. 	Inspecting, grading, rating, or enforcing fake standards. 	Selling something, pitching something, or closing a deal. 	Making a speech, sermon, promise, or public announcement.
Creating theories, fake science, history, or philosophy. 	Treating music like a professional responsibility. 	Doing a strange character bit that does not fit the park. 	Deeply suspicious behavior you cannot explain yet.